The next Dillman Genealogical Conference will be held August 7-9, 2014 in Plainfield, Indiana, right by the Indianapolis Airport. We will be focusing on Dillmans that served in the Civil War and the War of 1812. There will be a brief performance on a homemade banjo by a Dillman that regularly participates in Civil War reenactments. There should be enough free time for anyone wishing to visit any of the area cemeteries. HOWEVER, we are negotiating with hotels to find a reasonably priced location for our group. Right now, our goal is for $100.00 per night or less. Thus, we really need to know if you are planning to attend this reunion and, if so, if you will be staying at the hotel, and how many rooms and nights you think you will need. The more room nights we book, the lower our cost will be and it might help us get the meeting space for free or for a lower cost. Please contact DFA Secretary Melissa Minke at mminke2@att.net.

Both were lifelong residents of the Peru, IN area, however Vern & Vennie had moved to California in recent years to be near their daughter's family and grandchildren. Recent Local Dillman Reunions

The two groups of Dillmans featured here are in the Hans Georg/Conrad Dillmann line and have been consistent in holding family reunions annually with only an occasional exception.

The group referred to as the Charleston Group are concentrated in an area of Illinois which includes Charleston, Hoopeston, and Bloomington, with the occasional gathering in Wisconsin. These folks are mostly descendants of Reverend C. K. (Clifford Kingsley) and Bertha Eickelberger Dillman. C.K.'s lineage is Jonas, Samuel, John Wesley Sr, Andrew, Hans Georg Jr, Hans Georg Sr, and Conrad. They are truly interested in their family genealogy, often averaging 75-100 attendees at each reunion. They photograph the groups from each of C.K. and Bertha's seven children that had families. There is never a shortage of food and they are willing to listen to their distant cousin, Phil Dillman, and to look through his displays and to learn about the latest discoveries and activities of the Dillman Family Association.

This group of Dillmans are descended from Andrew and Elizabeth Bruner Dillman and are referred to as the Bloomington Group. This Andrew was a son of Andrew and Barbara Roush Dillman. These Dillmans primarily live in an area of southwestern Indiana which includes Clear Creek, Bloomington, Bedford, and Mitchell. They appreciate their family history, often allowing Phil to copy their old family photos while listening to him talk about their lineage and about the DFA. In 2012, they had twice the number of attendees that they usually have. The younger generation showed a particular interest this year in improving the family reunion communications via the Internet.

4. Andrew Reed Dillman, 1841 - ??? - by Phil Dillman

This article was pieced together using information from several sources including "Portrait and Biographical Album of McLean County, Ill.," and numerous records from Ancestry.com. One of the sources have Andrew R. dying in 1889 but other information contradicts that information, thus, the article.

Andrew Reed Dillman was the seventh child of Conrad and Lydia Reed Dillman. Andrew's grandfather, Andrew, was the first North American-born child of Hans Georg Dillmann Jr and Margaretha Murr.

When he was quite young, he was attacked with a disease of the hip, leaving him an invalid for about eight years. Though his father was poor and could not help much in having his children educated, Andrew R. loved his books and pursued his studies while confined at home. With some assistance from the district school, he fashioned himself to be a teacher and began teaching when he was eighteen years old. For a period of eight years, he taught during the winter and farmed on rented land in the summer during which he also furthered his education at Professor Laycock's Academy in Felicity, Ohio.

In 1866, he decided to move west, settling in McLean County, Illinois, serving as a teacher for the first year. For the next four years, he worked as a clerk in various stores in the town of McLean.

During that time, Andrew R. Dillman met Miss Joanna Crosswell. She was born in 1847 and they were married April 2, 1868, in McLean, Illinois.

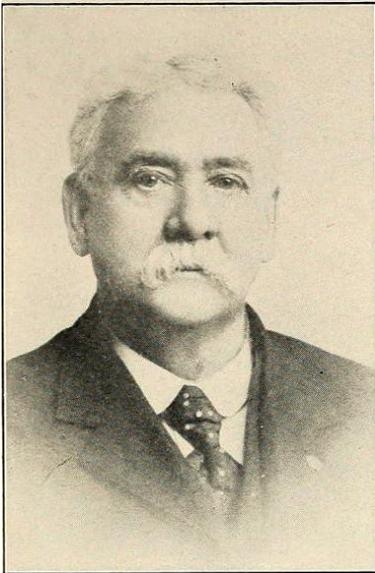

In 1872, he became a clerk in a drugstore, where he learned enough to become the druggist's clerk for a period of ten years. That experience allowed him to open a drug store of his own and was still in operation as of 1887.

On July 10, 1874, he was appointed Postmaster, a position he held until 1885.

On June 24, 1881, Andrew R. and Joanna became the parents of their only child, a daughter named Ora Litta Dillman.

Following his work as Postmaster in 1885, he then became the Editor of the McLean Lens, a local seven-column publication that was established in 1879, which was issued every Saturday night.

Besides all of those occupations, Andrew R. also served for six years as the village's Police Magistrate and served on the local School Board to help advance the educational and moral interests of his community. He was Republican in politics, and he and his wife were connected to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

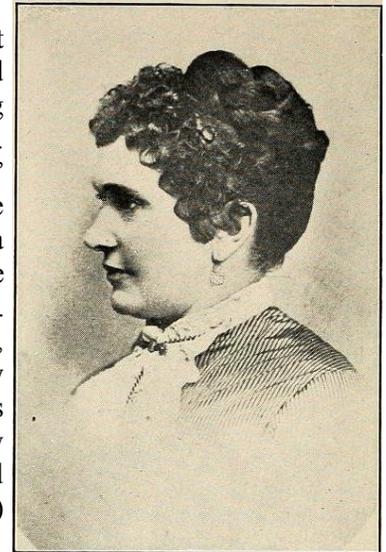

MR. A. R. DILLMAN.

The Biographical Album from 1887 stated that Andrew R. and Joanna occupied a "pleasant and comfortable home." However, Joanna is listed as living until 1893. The 1893 City Directory shows Andrew R. and his daughter, Ora, living "over 113 S. Center" which is likely an apartment above his drugstore. The 1900 U.S. Federal Census shows Andrew R. and Ora living with Andrew's mother-in-law, Catherine Crosswell. By 1909, Ora is listed as living at 505 E. Douglas in Normal, IL, and working as a cashier, although, that street is found closer to Bloomington. By the 1910 census, Ora was back in McLean and listed as a boarder with the Myers family. Meanwhile, Andrew was listed in the 1910 census as Andy R. Dellman and shown living as a Roomer in Mount Hope (McLean) with eight other people.

It is presumed that Andrew R. was deceased when Ora is listed in 1918 as living at 336 Loma Dr in Los Angeles, California and working as a book keeper. By 1921, her address is listed simply as 5th in Los Angeles. The 1940 census lists Ora as living in a rented house on South Grandview Street in Los Angeles and working as a Stenographer. She passed away August 5, 1962, and is buried in Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Glendale, Los Angeles County, California.

As of September 2013, we have yet to find the death date for Andrew R. or the location where he and Joanna are buried.

From the Hans Georg/Conrad Dillmann line - Delbert "Earle" Dillman - September 6, 2013

DELBERT E. DILLMAN, born December 19, 1919, and died September 6, 2013. Father to Bill Dillman, Chris Koenig and Mark Dillman. Our dear grandfather, great-grandpa, brother, uncle and friend. Memorial Service at Lindsay Lane Baptist Church, 920 Lindsay Lane, Florissant, MO. at 11am, Wednesday, September 18.

Earle's lineage is Delbert "Pete" Dillman 1893, John Charles Dillman 1858, John Wesley Dillman Jr 1830, John Wesley Dillman Sr 1783, Andrew Dillman 1753, Hans Georg Dillmann Jr 1724, Hans Georg Dillmann Sr 1682, and Conrad Dillmann, about 1660.

The DFA has been selected to take over moderation of the Rootsweb "Dillman" mailing list. We would encourage our members to subscribe to the list and participate in online discussions. The DFA sees the Dillman mailing list as a better, more efficient way to exchange information than the current bulletin board on the DFA website.

To access the Rootsweb mailing list, please go to:

At a recent DFA Board meeting, it was suggested that the group considers the possibility of a trip to Germany in 2015. This was based on the success of the trip there in 2009, the many things learned at that time and since then, and the potential for discovering still more with this recently learned information. As we further discuss the possibility of this trip taking place, we will publish the information for you. Stay tuned!

I found this Christmas card several years ago at a store called Origins that was located in Janesville, WI. The store closed and is run by someone else in the Columbus, Ohio area. They have a website and only set up in person at various events. I bought the reprint maps and atlases from them such as Illinois from 1876. Check them out online at origins.com.

He later remarried his late wife's youngest sister and adopted her fourteen children of whom the fourth oldest son married my second cousin.

5. The Second Mega-Reunion, Cincinnati, Ohio, August 2004
By Phil Dillman

With the success of the 2002 Dillman "Mega-Reunion" behind us, the newly-formed Interim Board began the task of planning the next gathering. Taking what we already knew and mentally processing all that we had learned during and since meeting in Indianapolis, we decided that we should hold the event in a different location but still in the Midwest. That way it would be in close proximity for most of those that were present in Indy yet different enough for those that wanted to explore a different part of the country. It also needed to be near a major airport for those that were flying in. Thus, we settled on Hebron, Kentucky, across the river from Cincinnati, Ohio. We also knew that there were lots of Dillmans buried in that area as well as many living Dillmans whom we had hoped to attract. I know a couple of us were able to visit the monument of Andrew and Barbara Roush Dillman in Bracken County, Kentucky prior to the reunion.

In Indianapolis, we had Dillman memorabilia on display and binders filled with lots of paperwork, all of which was on tables at one end of the meeting room. This time, we were able to use the "Armstrong Room" as our library and display area.

According to the minutes that were recorded by Earl Dillman, "Phil Dillman, acting President, called the meeting to order at 9AM and made the following announcements: June [Riccio], Earl [Dillman] and Frank [Dillman] were recognized for their efforts in putting this reunion together as well as June donating the cost of a 37-marker DNA test that will help us expand our research project. Frank Dillman was thanked for his contribution to our website's creation. Frank paid the first year start up costs to get the site up and running. June Riccio couldn't be with us this year due to a sciatic nerve problem that makes travel impossible. The good news is that June reports continued improvement! Phil was recognized for his tireless and dedicated efforts by a resounding round of applause."

"Sue Gail and Tom Tackett contributed a second 37-marker DNA test. Phil and Earl have been given the assignment of finding qualified individuals to match these two tests."

It was suggested that each DFA member can help expand both our attendance and our knowledge base by just helping us publicize our existence. By calling Dillmans in our local phone books or dropping them a note. Likewise, we can look for connections through the various organizations such as the DAR, SAR, DOC, SOC, etc.

Earl then conducted the election of officers with the following results: President - Toby Hurley, Vice-President - Chuck Dillman, Secretary - Earl Dillman and June Riccio, Treasurer - Joye Dillman, Librarian - Phil Dillman, Webmaster - Judy Hudson, DNA Project - Frank Dillman with assistance from Andrew Stillman and Phil Dillman, and News Editor - Position was left open.

With the creation of the Dillman DNA Project, we had a number of surprises with many of the participants not being related to who they thought they were and others being unexpectedly related. To that end, Andrew Stillman had learned through Family Tree DNA that he matched several of the Dillmans in the Dillman

DNA Project. Through additional research and comparing notes with the Dillmans, he found that his ancestor was indeed a Dillman. Andrew was able to illustrate this by giving a PowerPoint presentation to our group. At 37 years of age, Andrew was the youngest person in attendance but had been involved in genealogy for 21 years!

Dr. James M. Freed, retired zoologist who taught genetics at Ohio Wesleyan University and a genealogist for 35 years, gave a presentation on DNA testing which included a handout entitled “Genetic Genealogy: Fracturing Brick Walls.”

When the invitation for the reunion went out, there were 11 DNA test participants. A few months later at the reunion, we learned that we had 18! With that news, we felt it was time to expand our project to Europe so the search was on to find someone fluent in German to create a web page in both English and German.

Just as we did in 2002, we had scanners and computers running often to collect and copy information for the next planned set of CDs. Daniel Dillman offered to burn the CDs once Earl and June organized everything onto a master disk. Chuck Dillman volunteered to make the labels for the disks and jewel cases while Earl supplied the mailing labels. As late as November, we were still receiving information and photos for inclusion on the CDs!

Because of a comment that Marguerite Dillman made at the 2002 reunion regarding making sure your genealogy research goes to the person of your choice, Frank Dillman suggested that we all make certain to include such a desire in our wills. A form of will rider, a codicil, is an addendum that can be attached to your will. A form of codicil was included on the Dillman Family Association website.

There was much discussion about both the timing and the location for the 2006 reunion. We considered trying to combine our event with the Virginia group. However, we recognized that our focus was very different as we were trying to identify new branches while the Virginia Group were essentially all descendants of Christopher Dillman. We opted to schedule our next reunion for the first week in August and to invite their members to our event and encouraged our members to attend theirs a week later. Meanwhile, we considered finding a suitable location in Pennsylvania as virtually all of our ancestors were there at one time or another plus there were still large concentrations of Dillmans living in a few areas of the state. Toby offered to surf the net to locate where vital records were maintained in Pennsylvania while Chuck and Marie planned to visit possible meeting sites in Pennsylvania within the next few months and report back. From their trip, they picked up a lot of material from Robert F. Dillman of Ringtown, PA. The DFA Board eventually decided to hold the reunion in Harrisburg, PA.

Andrew Stillman - "Here is a Cemetery tombstone transcription for Jacob Church Cemetery, Fearing Township, Washington County, Ohio that Valerie sent me. I translated the inscription for her (it was in German). This isn't from her line, sadly, but it is for an immigrant Dillman from Germany which contained info on his birth location in Germany and parent's names. It contains a fair amount of personal info that someone may find useful."

"After speaking with my Bavarian colleague, here is a slightly updated version:"

Dillman, Jacob. born on 5 May 1808, died on 26 May 1873 (geb. is short for geboren = born; gest is short for gestorben = died)

spouse of Juliana Sander; son of Hilli (possibly short for Hilderbrand or some other nickname but not sure) Dillman and of Katharina Jung born on 5 May 1808 in Biedesbach, (near Usel), Pfalz. (town, region, state; I suspect this is now spelled Bedesbach, Kusel, Pfalz; Pfalz is the "state" which is known as the Palatinate in English and is just above the French border along the Rhine river <http://www.citypopulation.de/php/germany-rheinlandpfalz.php?cityid=07336106>) died on 26 May 1873 in Muckingum Township, Ohio; aged 65 years, 21 days

Here rests in the Lord. The struggle has ended. To rest quietly in the grave. He is still missed. The children's last gift. Peace be with you.. John Meisenhelder M (stone mason)

Dillman, Julianne born on 18 May 1811; died on 24 Jan. 1890.

(spelling mistake or typo, should be Ehefrau) wife of Jacob Dillman, born (Sander) [ie, her maiden name is Sander]; born on 18 May 1811 in Eweiler, Kasel, Bavaria (not sure about this location - Kasel is part of Hesse-Kasel, which is a different state from Bavaria. Was it you or Rex who had the book on parishes in Bavaria? It would be worth a look. My colleague could not make heads or tails of this very cryptic location) died on 24 Jan 1890, aged 78 years, 8 months, 6 days.

Phil Dillman - For most of us in North America, discovering a tombstone with this much information is quite exciting, even if that person isn't from our Dillman line. We typically get a person's name, the years they were born and died, and maybe an epitaph. Sometimes, just the date they died and their age when they died was included. Occasionally, we might get exact dates of their birth and death and, if it's a couple's headstone, the date they were married. More recently, the names of a couple's children are listed. Fraternal Orders or military service is also common on 20th century stones.

Since the DFA is interested in anyone that is a Dillman or was a Dillman or is related to anybody that even connects to a Dillman or Variant surname, we certainly hope that the information from the above tombstones can help someone discover their German roots.
